Subject: Modern Replacement Reverb Tank for Kustom K100-2
Posted by Lovguitar on Sat, 18 Aug 2018 04:00:13 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

After working on a Kustom K100-2 with broken reverb, I've eliminated one wiring problem and discovered that the short reverb tank that was gerry-rigged into place by the previous owner needs to be replaced. When I substitute in a good vintage tank, the reverb works fine. I've seen a number of threads about a good modern replacement but the threads arent't consistent. What modern reverb tank would be a "drop in" replacement for the original tank (or close at least).

Thanks!!

Paul

Subject: Re: Modern Replacement Reverb Tank for Kustom K100-2
Posted by rickdroit on Thu, 23 Aug 2018 06:13:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I would buy a vintage one from Ebay, there is nothing like a good USA made spring reverb, Accutronics, Hammond/Gibbs are a couple of brands, I would avoid china made mod news stuff personally, like all the newer stuff, it has no soul