Anyone out there know a good, safe way to clean/freshen up the plexi face---I have a great condition J595 Frankenstein head that needs the plexi cleaned, but I want to make sure I don't scratch it.....

HELP.....

Novus makes a 3 step process, 3 product solution. Jimm told us all about it. It works pretty good.

Two places I know of and have ordered it from are www.tubesandmore.com (They sell the 3 pack for like $14 I think) and www.denniskirk.com where you can buy them individually. Jimm told us about using it to clean up the naugahyde of the Kustoms too. It's good stuff. It works great on my harley windshield too!

This is a little late, but I'm a newbie and just getting caught up.

Honda makes a aerosol cleaner polish for their motorcycles. It is the only product that they endorse for the Goldwings windshield. It's about $5 and I know a lot of non-Honda riders that swear by it. It will clean and polish AND not SCRATCH.

I've used on my J495 head.

Novus plastic cleaning stuff. Buy the 3 different levels of their product, 3, 2 and cleaner/protectant. It can be bought in a 3 pack from www.tubesandmore.com www.denniskirk.com as well as any Harley-Davidson dealership. Read the instructions and follow them. Deb

We have two harleys, one of which is mine, and this is the ONLY stuff I'll use on my windshield--and I have a HARLEY, not a Honda! :-)

From what I gleaned, The three step Novus product is great for scratch removal too...

..and don't try for the pity plow by telling us you own a "Hardley"...you bought it..:-)

Sorry....Typo

Pity Plow = Pity ploy

Hardley, as in hardley a motorcycle..

All in fun. However it's very easy to get offended over brand preference and affiliation. We all love Kustom, so I'm not going to start a motorcycle thread here. Besides I'm already on three cycle listers and need to come here to mellow out.

Well Mike, I'll forgive you! Just keep in mind that both Harley Davidsons and Kustoms are American made!
