I was followed home yesterday by a K200A-4 with a 3x15 Altec cabinet. I bought the amp in "dead" condition as I took the owner at his word. When I got home I plugged it up and found it really does work but the pilot light was burned out. The amp sat dormant for a few years and popped and cracked for a few minutes then sounded better as it was played a bit. However, none of the effects are working which seemed a little odd. Does this point to any particular problem or are they separate problems? I know on this model all effects are available on one channel so I thought that might be a clue. Thanks! BC
