Hello everyone,

I am new to the wonderful world of Kustom amps, and have a question. Just yesterday I bought a Kustom V Lead off of Craigslist and could not find any info about this amp on the internet. The amp is in great shape and sounds good, it is very loud. Any information would be greatly appreciated.

Eddie

Hello and welcome.
These amps are bisicaly a re- packaged K250 models (simliar build and boards fo the most part) without the tuck and roll in regards to the normal channel and the whole bass model head.

The lead model has a different distortion and effects section to some degree, but fucntion wise it still very much like a loaded K 250 model.

If you go to the Literature section on this site check out the 250 model info from the posted catalogs up there.
