Looking for just a shell or a junked/non-operational vintage combo amp for a major restoration project. Basically, this model:

Alternatively, is there anybody on the forum who could build a cabinet to more or less the original design specs?

Thanks in advance.

If it were me, I would just spend 400.00 and buy one that is ready to go and save the one you have for parts. The parts from the one you have will work in many different Kustoms. You will have way more than 400.00 into having someone make you a case and upholster it and then fix the electronics. Just my .02.

Hi Joe,

I have a K100C-8 for sale. Don't know if that would work for you. It is not just a shell. It is fully operational with a footswitch and Kustom cover. It is not exactly like the one you have pictured. It has no wheels and has a handle on the top. Could not figure out how to include a photo with this message. Sorry about that...
