I am having the hardest time finding a case to fit my 68 Kustom K200B guitar. Original ones are damned near impossible, and even finding one to fit my dimensions is a pain. Anybody else ever have this problem? The lower bout is 14 1/2" upper bout is 11", total length is 39 1/2".

Also, while I am at it, I have an old 71-73 Kustom 2x12 combo amp cab that I custom fit a marshall chassis into. Looking for a cover for that. Unfortunately its at the studio and I don't have the dimensions. Would I be better off just having a custom cover made? Thanks!

This place makes great covers; reasonable prices. Should have what you need.

You might want to try a case that a Fender Jaguar or Jassmaster fits in. They are wider than a case for a strat or tele.

Update: Got the case and it fits well! The width is perfect, and there is about an inch of play in the lower end, but if I just wrap up my leather strap, and wedge it in between the guitar and the case, it's snug! Thanks again! Will update on the cover for the amp soon.
