I've tried eBay and CL so I thought I'd try on here. I'm in the So Cal/San Diego area and this cab is just too heavy to ship. It's all original and does work. Overall appearance is excellent. Has a few vinyl issues but not bad (one on back and bottom corner) Also has the original ball wheels in perfect working condition. Cover has a few rips and holes but is still solid and does its job. Contact me in a private message if interested and I'll email you some pics. Asking $300... that's a damn steal but you'll have to pick it up or arrange for pickup and delivery. Rock on!!

Crap.....wish you were closer to Iowa, I'd buy it up in a heart beat. What's it got for speakers in it?

Can't believe you haven't had any takers yet.....you've got it priced right. Some of the stuff there selling in the Midwest is very over priced and beat up to boot. If nothing else, dismantle it and sell it for parts. Have met a couple of guys who were in the same boat as you.....couldn't sell the cabinet because it was too heavy to ship cost wise. Sold the components separately and got more money than they were originally asking for. Just a thought. Speakers, ports, handles, and badge should get you a few green backs. Hell, if the T&R is still good, I'd take it off and sell it....guy I know got $15 just for the screws that hold the back panel on. Hang in there, if your not scrapped for money, the right buyer will come along otherwise scrape her out. If nothing else...donate it to a Goodwill store and get a nice healthy tax credit.

Maybe I'll find a guy here in Diego that has a speed boat with that same color vinyl and he could use it for a subwoofer I hear ya on the parting out but it's way to clean and solid to part out. Perhaps down the road I may list the cover separate, we'll see.

If you scrap her, I want first shot at the bass ports and the Kustom logo.....hell even the T&R if it's still all in one piece. Thinking about building my own 2-15's cabinet and getting Altec speakers off of ebay for it. Again, nothing here locally and very over priced 4 or 5 hours away. Keep me in mind. This site is like my second home.

Hey I was thinking....something I probably shouldn't be doing, send me your zip code via the private message here and approximate weight of the cabinet. Maybe we can work something out. I could use the cabinet and cut it down into a 2-15. Only things I don't need are the speakers or the casters.....so if you sold those separate you'd make a little extra on the deal.....or if freight isn't too extreme, I'd buy the whole thing and sell those off. Let me know what you think.....at least your cabinet would still be put to good use. Maybe you could dismantle the cabinet and send it to me in pieces.....lol.
