Recently acquired a pair of Kustom tuck & roll cabs. Each of the cabs have 2-15" Altec Lansing 418 G15A 21522 by Ross speakers rated at 16 ohms. On back of both cabs the diamond shape where the jack input also states Altec. They have a very huge room filling sound. No problems what so ever. Someone has put insulation inside the cabs for some reason. Curiosity has me wondering what type of value are in these if I were to part with them? Along with all of this I also received a Kustom K200 B2 amp head in working condition. All of this is in beautiful shape considering the age. I would upload pics but there is a 10 post minimum message when I try. Is there another way?

Nice find on those speakers no less the Ross cabinets!
Kustom cabinets where made with black painted insulation lining all 4 walls and the back of the cabinet.

Are you asking about a selling price for just the 4 speakers, or the two cabinets loaded with those Altec drivers?

If you put up 9 more post saying testing for pictures I will delete them once you get your pictures up in post number 11.

My intention would be selling both cabs rather than parting them out. I have no use for them in my studio.

They are in excellent condition except for the bottom underside where it appears to have scuffing marks and slight tears from possibly being moved. The rest of the cabs are near perfect.

Braud357. It is the underside if the cab where fabric has worn away in spots. Nobody will ever see it unless they turn the cabs upside down to view the bottom. I would suspect it has happened from moving them around and scraping doorways and such. Structurally they are in excellent shape.
