i don't really need two or want two, but the price was too good to pass up jensen c15l. I'm guessing 75-85w handling per speaker (k is 100, n is 50) would've loved black to go with my k200 but these are pretty. will attempt to restore as best i can Nice score! They will load that 200 of yours very nicely.

I don't know what you paid for them, but just those circa 1969 top of the line L series concert drivers are worth 100 bucks or more each on there own!
I would not pump more then 65 watts into each of them , and note these are not Bass drivers.

one thought was to sell the drivers to put cheaper ones in, but these distort nicely hooked up my converted traynor pa mixer head to the pair and for 100 solid state watts this was LOUD

I've already placed the screws and finish washers on the neck with new ones (20 bucks at the hardware store and now i have plenty of spares) i think instead of going nuts with these I'll sell some other speakers/enclosures... have way more than i need upon opening up to inspect the insides i found a 7/16 deep well socket stuck to the magnet...

bonus!

You'll find tons of stuff in these at times!

I had one that a kid dumped 17 toy cars and trucks into , his partents must have been going mad buying the kid new ones every week yet having no trace of where the old ones got off to, lol!
